HAWAII GETS A NATIONAL PARK

Another Unit Added to Park System of America.

THOUSANDS OF ACRES GIVEN GOVERNMENT

Dedication of Park Attended by a Large Company, Including American Tourists.

Honolulu, Aug. 13.—Another unit has been added to Uncle Sam's system of national playgrounds by the official dedication of Hawaii national park.

Simplicity marked the dedication ceremonies, which took place on the brink of Halemaumau, fire-pit of Kilauea volcano, where the hot breath of Pele's fires scorched the faces of participants and onlookers. A feature of the ceremony was the chanting of an ancient Hawaiian prayer to Pele, goddess of fire, whose legendary home Kilauea is, followed by a repetition of the first Christian prayer repeated at the volcano by the first Hawaiian to defy Pele. The park was received on behalf of the federal government by A. G. Burkland, of the United States geodetic survey, who acted at the request of Secretary of the Interior Fall, while Lorrin A. Thurston, publisher of the Honolulu Advertiser and pioneer citizen of Hawaii, represented the territory. Included in the large crowd which gathered to witness the ceremony was a party of twenty-eight tourists from New York, headed by H. V. Kaltenborn, of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

The new park, with a total area of about 74,000 acres, is divided into three sections, which embrace some of the most interesting and in many respects the most noteworthy features of the entire national park system. On the island of Hawaii are the Kilauea and Mauna Loa sections, which adjoin and which include within their boundaries two active volcanoes. Kilauea and the intermittently active volcano, Mauna Loa, the latter, with an elevation of 13,675 feet, being the second highest peak in the Pacific. The third section of the park lies on the island of Maui and is known as the Haleakala section, taking its name from the mountain whose great extent summit crater forms the principal portion of the area controlled by the government. The crater of Haleakala is twenty miles in circumference at its rim, which has an elevation of ten thousand feet, has a depth of over two thousand feet and an extreme width of seven miles being the largest extinct volcanic crater known.

Comparatively speaking, Hawaii national park is still uncommercialized, although there are two hotels in the Kilauea section and rest houses for the accommodation of tramping parties on both Haleakala and Mauna Loa.

OHIO TO FRONT IN HONEY PRODUCTION

Industry Hard Hit by Weather in Many States.

Columbus, Aug. 15.—This summer's prolonged dry spell and excessive heat cut honey production far below normal in all the principal bee-keeping states except Ohio and Michigan and will serve to make these two states close contenders for second place in total production, according to F. B. Moore, Columbus, president of the Ohio State Beekeepers' association. The Buckeye and Wolverine states were only slightly hit by the drought so far as honey production is concerned, because it came after the honey-supplying clovers were in bloom. In most states the heat came so early as to interfere with the nectar-bearing plants.

California, which for years has ranked far in the lead of any other state in honey production, will have a yield of only 12 per cent of normal this year according to Moore, but even at that will retain her place at the top. Iowa, which usually ranks second, has only a 50 per cent crop this year and will drop away down in the list.

INVESTIGATORS ARE SKEPTICAL IN CASE

Do Not Think Missing Magnate Is in Des Moines.

Frank Harty, fromer chief of police here, declares that a legless man whom he has had under surveillance for several months is Small and that he expects relatives here soon to identify him.

John O'Malley, a newspaper man who assisted in the search for Small after his disappearance, however, declared, today, that the man in question does not answer Small's description.

O'Malley said he was confident it was a case of mistaken identity.

CANAL TOLL BILL IS BEFORE SENATE

Borah Would Have Measure Passed Without Debate.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The senate will be asked to establish a parliamentary precedent by acting on the bill to repeal the tolls on American coastwise vessels passing through the Panama canal without the formality of debate.

The request will be made by Senator Borah, author of the bill, and in charge of it on the floor. Pointing out that the subject already has been thoroughly debated and the question it involves "reached out in several congresses, the senator said that he could see no reason why immediate action on it could not be obtained.

"The debate on this question," the senator said, "would fill volumes. Every member of the senate is familiar with it, and knows now how he is going to vote. There is no chance to debate it again."

The senator added that he hoped the senate would accept his point of view so the consideration of other important legislation might be facilitated in consonance with this view, he will himself make no explanatory speech on the bill, as is customary. He intends, however, to defend it vigorously should opposition develop.

Heslin, funeral services for the murdered priest took place at St. Mary's cathedral, with thousands in attendance. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery, a short distance from Father Heslin's parish, at Colma.

Hightower, whose action in leading the police to the spot where Rev. Heslin's body was found in the sand along the Pacific ocean led to his being held as a suspect, has, according to the police, made a number of contradictory statements which, when called to his attention, caused him to become surly, stubborn and uncommunicative.

Doris Shirley, a woman named by Hightower in an alibi statement through which he endeavored to show that he was out of the city on the night the priest disappeared, has voluntarily communicated with the authorities and denies the suspect's story that she accompanied him from San Francisco to San Jose in an automobile on the night of Aug. 2.

HEADS OF SLACKER HENS LOPPED OFF

Process of Culling Goes Merrily on in County.

Modern methods of character analysis continue to cut a wide swath in the ranks of slacker hens in Marion and forty-five other counties of Ohio, according to returns just compiled by extension workers of the department of poultry husbandry, the Ohio State university.

During the first week of August alone, 1,260 Marion hens were dragged from the roost and made centers of interest at eleven farm culling demonstrations, conducted by the county farm bureau. Poultry husbandmen, trained in detecting loafers by such sure signs as early molt, yellow shanks and beak, and low body capacity went over them and demonstrated the latest methods of analyzing biddy's character and achievements before audiences totalling 136 Marion countians.

Birds found wanting were killed. For each loafing hen given the ax, poultry workers say, the owner can figure on a clear saving of eighty cents between now and January.

On this basis, the average cull of twenty-three per cent. made at demonstrations in thirty-two counties during July represents a saving of $11.73. The state-wide campaign is now about half concluded.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmo Scott Watson

© Western Newspaper Union.

"JOHNNY APPLESEED," SCOUT WHO PLANTED ORCHARDS

Not all of the great scouts were Indian fighters. In contrast to the career of Lewis Wetzel, who was something of a professional Indian killer, is the life of John Chapman or "Johnny Appleseed." Chapman never killed an Indian in his life, but he probably saved as many white men from death at their hands as Wetzel did.

Chapman first appeared on the Ohio frontier in 1806. He came floating down the Ohio river in a canoe, towing another, and both boats were loaded with apple seeds from the cider mills of Pennsylvania. His purpose was to plant the seeds in the wilderness so that orchards would be started for the settlers when they arrived there to make their homes.

For the next 30 years he went everywhere up and down the Ohio country, planting seeds, going from one orchard to another, pruning and caring for the young trees. He was a welcome visitor in the log cabins of the settlers for he always carried a Bible and some books from which he would read and preach to them before the blazing fireplaces in the evening.

Johnny practiced his teachings of humility and kindness. He never killed anything for food. He carried a kit of cooking utensils, including a mush pan, which he sometimes wore as a hat. Usually he wore a broad-brimmed black hat, but a coffee sack with arm holes cut in it was his only coat.

White men called him "queer," for he often went barefoot in winter as well as in summer, but the Indians said, "He has been touched by the Great Spirit." He went everywhere among them unharmed, for the fact that Johnny never carried a gun convinced them that he was under the special protection of the Manito.

During the War of 1812 when the British were overrunning the Ohio country, Johnny Appleseed performed his greatest service for his people. In his wanderings among the tribes he often learned of their plans for attacks on the settlements. Where no other white man could have gone, Johnny passed in safety and more than once he carried warnings to the settlers, giving them time to prepare for defense before the red invaders swept down upon them.

All this time Johnny Appleseed was carrying out his cherished dream of making Ohio bloom with fruit trees and many of the finest orchards in that state today owe their beginnings to this strange man. In his later years Johnny left the country which he had helped beautify and went to live with a relative in Fort Wayne, Ind. He died in 1847.

RHINE BARRIER IS BEING CONSIDERI

Supreme Council Expected Lift Barrier Soon.

Paris, Aug 15.—Lifting of the economic barrier of the Rhineland [illegible], providing Germany pays [illegible] amounts she undertook to pay under the London ultimatum and agrees to remove the boycott against French goods, was decided upon at the first session of the allied supreme council. It was decided, however, to maintain the occupation of Ruhrort, Duisburg and Dusseldorf until the next meeting of the council, which it is understood will be held previous to the Washington disarmament conference. At that time Premier Briand consented the question of the occupation of the right bank of the Rhine should be reconsidered.

The decisions were reached after M. Briand, as president of the council, replied to attack made by Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, and Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the British exchequer. Against what was termed the present expensive system of administering the treaty, especially as concerned occupation of the Ruhr region. This, Lord Curzon said, is "very costly and irritating to German national sentiment and pride."

A THIRTY-DAY SENATE RECESS

Provided in Resolution Introduced by Lodge.

PLANNED FOR RECESS TO BEGIN AUGUST 20

Senator King Appears in Opposition to Recognition of Mexico in Senate.

Washington, Aug 15.—A thirty-day recess of the senate, to begin August 20, was provided for in a concurrent resolution introduced, today, in the senate by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, a Republican leader. Lodge said that he would call up the resolution tomorrow.

Opposes Recognition

Washington, Aug. 15.—Calling attention to a resolution recently passed by the Texas legislature, in which the United States government was asked to extend recognition to the Obregon government in Mexico, Senator King, Democrat, Utah, declared today in the senate that he would oppose such recognition so long as "outrages are perpetrated on American citizens and the property of American nationals is seized and confiscated."

A Resolution.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, announced today in the senate that he would introduce a resolution to prevent adding of more commissioned officers to the army, unless such action is taken by the senate military-affairs committee.

Borah referred to press statements that examinations were to be held to select officers.

"It is unthinkable," he said, "to provide 1,000 more officers for an army of 150,000 enlisted men."

Has New Plan.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty will lay before President Harding this week for approval a new plan of the department of justice to clear up congestion of cases in federal courts.

The attorney general's proposal will include a draft of proposed legislation to provide additional judges, and to clothe the attorney general with broader authority to further systematize procedure in the courts, and thus facilitate handling of litigation.

Congress may be asked also to give the attorney general power to assign judges outside of the districts for which they were appointed, for temporary duty in aiding other judges who are more burdened with both civil and criminal court business.

An official outline of the new plan, probably indicating the number of judges that are necessary to make the judiciary system function adequately to meet the increased demands made by litigation, is expected from the department of justice within a few days after President Harding has approved the plans to be presented.

The attorney general's plan has been worked out after consultation with Chief Justice William Howard Taft and a special court docket committee, which included District Attorney Hayward, of New York; Judge John E. Sater, of Columbus, Ohio, and District Attorney Cline, of Chicago.

To Admit Aliens.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The senate, today, passed a joint resolution permitting the admission of aliens who sailed from foreign ports on or before June 8, 1921. The resolution removes certain restrictions, imposed upon the emergency immigration act. It has been passed by the house and will now go to the president.

Declines Invitation.

Washington, Aug. 15.—President Harding declined an invitation to open the press convention of the world, at Honolulu, in October. He informed officials of A. N. P. A. who extended the invitation, that the pressure of public business would prevent him from attending.

An Amendment.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The interstate commerce commission would be prohibited from establishing alleged discriminatory freight rates in favor of seaboard cities, under an amendment to the transportation act of 1920, introduced today in the senate by Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada.

For Appropriation.

Washington, Aug. 15.—President Harding, today, transmitted to the senate the request of Under Secretary of State Fletcher for an appropriation of $200,000 to defray the expenses of the forthcoming armament limitation conference.

For Free Tolls.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The senate today agreed unanimously to vote, October 10, on the Borah resolution to provide free tolls through the Panama canal of American coastwise vessels.

Some one has said that truth is eternal. Perhaps, but time changes its looks until its own mother wouldn't know it.

INNOCENT SERVES TWO TERMS FOR A CRIME

Mrs. Rose Gooding

All England is interested in the pathetic case of Mrs. Rose E. Gooding, of Littlehampton, who has been released from Portsmouth prison, after serving more than eight months of two sentences for crimes of which she has just been proven innocent. Mrs. Gooding, who is the mother of two small children, was sentenced to fourteen months and twelve days on being convicted of writing obscene messages. She appealed, and a decision was rendered against her. An investigation by Scotland yard, recently completed, proved that it would have been impossible for Mrs. Gooding to have committed the offenses of which she had been convicted and sentenced. She was ordered released by the court of criminal appeal in London.

POLICE SEEKING A WOMAN IN TRAGEDY

Alleged She Has Information Regarding Murder of Priest.

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—Newspaper photographs of Martha Dorothy Fisher Grifford have been identified as those of "Dolly Mason," the "enigma woman" in the Father Heslin murder case by William A. Hightower, who is held at Redwood City charged with the murder of the priest.

Hightower says "Dolly Mason" is the woman who told him she heard a foreigner bragging about slaying and burying a body and of a flapjack sign on the road as a key to the location of the grave. It was this information, Hightower asserts, that enabled him to discover the grave of the slain priest.

Louis Grifford, divorced husband of the woman known as "Dolly Mason," also has told the police that descriptions of her printed in the newspapers tally with those of his former wife.

Police are seeking the woman to confirm or refute the story told by Hightower.

"BLACK HAND" TAKES ANOTHER CANTON VICTIM

Italian Is Shot Five Times by Unknown Persons.

Canton, Aug. 15.—The "Black Hand" which has been terrorizing Canton Italians for many years, claimed another victim last night and a third murder was added to the local police list for solution, today. Dominick Nasto, twenty-seven, was shot five times in a field near his home, last night. His wife and two children were sitting at a window, heard the shots and screams of a man, but did not investigate following the unwritten law of Canton's "jungle" to keep away from such affairs. The children discovered the body this morning. Police are looking for another Italian who has been seen with Nasto recently.

Nasto's wife said her husband had received letters, recently demanding money.

EXPRESS CRUISER HAS A HARD NIGHT

Goes Aground and Is Pounded by Heavy Seas.

Cedar Point, Aug. 15.—The forty-foot express cruiser, Aurora, owned by E. C. Dutton, Cleveland, a member of the Cleveland Yacht club, was picked up and towed here this morning. Although pounded in a terrific sea from 6 o'clock last night, she was undamaged.

The Aurora went aground on a sandbar off Cedar Point, while en route to Sandusky from Kelley's Island, last evening. Fred Dutton, Miss Alice Dutton, Miss Sophia Macha, John VanDimond and Mr. and Mrs. William Anthony, of Cleveland, the occupants were taken off by the crew of the lighthouse tender, Crocus.

Swift Retribution.

Boston, Aug. 15.—Michael Clifford while chasing his wife out of their home, slipped and fell, breaking his neck. He died instantly. Clifford, who is believed to have been intoxicated, had armed himself with a knife.

No Selection Made.

London, Aug. 15.—Premier Lloyd George announced in the house of commons this afternoon that he was not yet able to state the name of the British delegates to the Washington conference.

BANKERS MAY HOLD CONGRESS

International Meeting Is Now Being Planned.

WOULD STABILIZE WORLD EXCHANGE

Financiers May Meet in Washington at Time of Armament-Limitation Conference.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Assembly of an international congress of financiers at Washington—possibly coincident with the disarmament conference in November—to discuss stabilization of foreign exchange, is under consideration at the treasury, officials said.

No definite plans have as yet been drawn, officials declared but the idea behind the proposed conference is to bring together the leading bankers and financiers of the world, in hopes of evolving a program which, by removing the uncertainties now resulting from exchange fluctuations, would pave the way for a revival of commerce between the nations.

An appropriation by congress would be necessary to permit the holding of such a meeting, officials asserted, but, they added, the expense would not be great, especially if the financiers were to meet at the time of the disarmament conference, when many of the world's financial experts are expected to be here.

Stabilization of exchange rates has been the subject of careful consideration by various government agencies during the past several months, in view of the ill effect of varying rates upon the country's foreign trade. According to Secretary Hoover the uncertainties attending shifting exchange levels is one of the major difficulties facing the recovery of the country's commerce.

Establishment of an international clearing house for foreign trade transactions, which would issue a fictive monetary unit for the purposes of the world's commerce, is advocated by Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger. Such a plan, according to Mr. Crissinger, would insure the permanence of some ratio of exchange, which is more important than a particular ratio of exchange.

Opinions differ, officials declared, as to whether stabilization of exchange could be effected best by concerted action of the governments of the various leading commercial nations or through a working agreement among the private bankers of the different countries. The method to be adopted, it was said would have to be determined before the conference was called.

TWO MANSFIELD YOUTHS ARE HELD

Charged with a Series of Automobile Stealings.

Columbus, Aug. 15.—In a flivver, said to have been stolen at Mansfield, two boys, Charles Kennedy and Rex. Conrad, each aged fourteen years, reached Worthington, ten miles north of here, when their supply of gasolene gave out.

There the lads are accused of having taken a medium-priced car which they abandoned at the outskirts of the village when a county policeman came in sight.

Hiking to North Columbus they were about to get away with a high-priced machine, belonging to Glen Robins, it is claimed, when taken into custody by a policeman.

The boys were taken to the county jail, preparatory to being returned to Mansfield.

Minister Stricken.

Toledo, Aug. 15.—Rev. C. E. Lapp, of Granville, was stricken with apoplexy while preaching in the Ashland avenue Baptist church, Sunday evening. He was hurried to a hospital, where his condition is regarded as serious.

DIRECTS SOLDIER RELIEF

Colonel Charles R. Forbes is the commander-in-chief of the government forces for the relief of disabled soldiers, now consolidated under one organization to be known as the veterans' bureau. He becomes the head of an insurance business of 651,054 active policies and 537,590 term policies. He will be responsible for the average $1,000,000 a day expenditure by the government in meeting the compensation and insurance claims. He will be the one to control 265 war-risk patients now being cared for in 500 private and state government hospitals.

Fourscore men appear to share with President Harding the faith in the successful administration of this mammoth task by Colonel Forbes. He is forty-four years old. In his youth he shipped before the mast. Before the war he was vice-president of a large engineering corporation. He was in the Somme offensive, the Argonne and the St. Mihiel drive.

TWO PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY

New York, Aug. 15.—Two additional petitions in involuntary bankruptcy making three altogether, were filed with Judge Manton in the United States district court, today, against the United States Mail Steamship company.

One of the new petitions was filed by DeLancey Nevill, on behalf of A. A. Sarlett, L. Heise and W. E. Williams. In this petition it is alleged the company concurs in the statement that it is unable to meet the obligations of these three creditors.

The second application was filed by Olcott, Bonynge & Ernst, in behalf of Ethel Cotter with an alleged claim of $2,000, William Mulhall, with a claim of $2,163 and Lester Townsend, with a claim of $2,283.

No action has yet been taken by the court on the petitions.

New Law Blamed.

Columbus, Aug. 15.—The Pence anti-glare law is blamed for an automobile accident near Heimandale Grove, southeast of Columbus. When Bert Bickel, No. 427 Stewart avenue, ran down John Hughes and Miss Anna Brockelsby, of this city, seriously injuring them, he explained that he could not see the road clearly because he had complied with the Pence law by putting new lenses on his headlights.

One never realizes the aimless life of a policeman until the officer attempts to shoot a dog.

INDUSTRIES IN MIDDLE WEST

In Deplorable Condition Because of Price Decline.

TESTIMONY GIVEN COMMISSION TODAY

Federal Reserve Bank Official at Kansas City Talks of Agriculture and Freight Rates.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Agricultural industries in the Middle West are in a deplorable condition due to the decline in prices, A. E. Ramsay, chairman of the board of directors of the federal reserve bank at Kansas City, Missouri, declared before the interstate commerce commission, at a hearing on the application of public utilities commission of Kansas for a reduction of intrastate freight rates on grain, grain products and hay.

Ramsay told the commission that probably in no other section of the country is there such a variety of agricultural products grown as in the territory embraced in the tenth federal reserve district. The chief factor, he said in bringing about the present condition of stagnation prevailing throughout this great agricultural belt is the fact that the cost of production is greater than the price received for the various commodities.

YANKS ARE BACK IN FIRST PLACE

Fans Watch American League Games with Great Interest.

New York, Aug. 15.—The Yanks started [illegible] August schedule [illegible] league once again, thanks to the Chicago White Sox, who toppled Cleveland when Red Faber came back and held the champions to five hits. Five points now separate the pacemaking American league teams.

This Breakers team will be a chance to overhaul and pass the Yanks somewhere, as Miller Huggins' pennant contenders will be idle until Wednesday when they are scheduled to commence their last western road trip at Chicago. The tribesmen are playing the White Sox and Kid Gleason's ads are the only ones who can keep New York in first place.

In the National league, the dashing Braves still hold the lead of four and one-half games. The Giants are holding on doggedly, but have failed to take advantage of chances to overhaul and go ahead of Pittsburgh and seem unable to deliver the punch necessary to a pennant winner. As a result of the consistent backwardness shown by the Giants, baseball critics in general are already conceding the pennant to George Gibson's team, though the race has seven more weeks to run.

The Boston Braves eight games behind Pittsburgh, are apparently out of the running for good. The same holds true of Washington in the American league. The senators are nine and one-half games in the wake of the Yankees.

THE MILLINERS ARE NOW UTILIZING SNAILS

Hint to housewives—If you wish to get your snails you had better go and get them now. If you don't you may find that the Retail Milliners' association has cornered the market. The milliners need small snails for decorative purposes. Here is a French mode, hat which is trimmed lavishly with nothing but small snails. It is one of a vast collection of women's chapeaux shown by the Retail Milliners' association at the annual show for fall and winter hats.

T. J. PEELING FALLS OFF MOTOR TRUCK AND DIES

Children's Home Gardener Meets Death This Morning.

SKULL BROKEN, LIVES FOR SEVERAL HOURS

Daughter Is Killed at Oak Street Railroad Crossing Number of Years Ago.

Thomas J. Peeling, fireman and gardener at the Waddel Children's home, fell off a truck this morning about 5:30 o'clock while enroute from this city to the home and died at the City hospital at 9:15 o'clock from concussion of the brain due to a fractured skull. He died without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Peeling, who resided with his daughter, Mrs. John W. Moore, No. 219 Owens street, was walking to the home and when about a half mile this side, he hailed a truck driver for a ride. The [illegible] truck from the Utility Sales company of Toledo, [illegible] to Springfield, and the last one stopped for him.

Sits on Running board

There was no cover on the rear of the truck and Peeling sat down on a running-board about a foot and a half long, near the driver's seat. The driver while talking of the accident to D. W. Rinehart, superintendent of the home, stated that he told the man to be careful. But as Mr. Peeling was quite hard of hearing, it is supposed that he did not hear the warning. The truck had gone about 200 feet when he fell off, striking his head on the macadam road. Another supposition is that the man might have suffered a stroke.

The injured man was taken to the City hospital in a passing automobile and his death resulted a few hours later an operation having been found impossible.

Clifford Carnahan was manager of the trucks and was accompanying them.

Daughter Is Killed.

Mr. Peeling was about fifty-four years of age and a widower, his wife having died December 29, 1918. A twelve-year-old daughter, Mauddie, was killed at the Oak street crossing about ten years ago while she was enroute from her home to the Central school building.

Surviving Mr. Peeling are three daughters and a son, Mrs. Edward Case, of Crestline; Mrs. Edward Lynn, No. 219 Wallace street; Mrs. John W. Moore, of Owens street, and Thomas J. Peeling, Jr., who resides with his sister at Crestline. Mr. Peeling was one of a family of fourteen children and members of his family reside at York, Pennsylvania, his former home. Mr. Peeling had resided here about eleven years and was a member of the Calvary evangelical Sunday-school.

Mr. Peeling had been at the children's home the past two years and had been engaged for next spring and summer, as he did not wish to work this winter. He was always pleasant to everyone at the home and deeply interested in his work. He was very well liked. At one time he conducted a grocery on north Main street.

SOLDIER TO BE REBURIED HERE ON ARMISTICE DAY

Dwight W. Artist Will Be Taken from Potter's Field.

SIGNAL HONOR NOW PLANNED FOR HIM

American Legion Takes Steps for Removal of Body to Another Part of Cemetery.

All that is mortal of Dwight Wells Artis, World war soldier, who now sleeps the long last sleep in the potter's field at Marion cemetery, is to be given another burial. The body is to occupy an honored grave in another part of the cemetery.

Following the publication in Friday's Star of the fact that the World war hero had been buried in the potter's field, there was renewed interest in the fate of the unfortunate soldier.

An Armistice Day Tribute.

It was learned today that the members of McGinnis Post, No. 162, have already taken steps toward disinterring the body and reburying it.

According to present plans it is proposed to pay a distinguished [illegible] to the [illegible] and burial to be done on Armistice day, November 11.

Artis died January 6, this year, at the home of Elmer Depew, No. 717 Roma street, after an illness of typhoid fever and heart trouble.

No Close Relatives Here.

Artis, with his company, had left the United States and was in mid-ocean at the time of the signing of the armistice. He seems to have no close relatives in this part of the country.

A father, John Artis, of Highland, Illinois, and a brother, John Artis, Jr., attended the funeral, but were financially unable to take the body home or purchase a lot in the cemetery. The father, at the time of the funeral, was almost totally blind.

In Future Cases.

At a recent meeting of McGinnis post preliminary action was taken to prevent the burial of any World war soldier in a potter's field in Marion county.

A committee from the post headed by Edward Dix [illegible] been conferring with officers of the Marion Cemetery association to arrange for the setting aside of a plot of ground in the cemetery for the burial of homeless and penniless World war veterans. It is expected that this committee will make a report of its work at the regular meeting of McGinnis post tomorrow night.

SITE OF THE NEW WESLEY M. E. CHURCH DEDICATED

With Ground-Breaking Exercises Saturday Afternoon.

DR. J. D. DARLING TURNS FIRST SPADE OF EARTH

William Daymude, President of Board of Trustees Presents Lot for Dedication.

With an impressive service Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the site of the new Wesley M. E. church on the east side of Oxley avenue near Columbia street, was dedicated and the first ground broken. There was a large attendance at the services.

The program opened with a song, prayer was offered by Rev. W. E. Ridenour and the scripture reading was by Rev. E. L. Ditzler, J. M. Dennis and Rev. George A. Kenyon, of Rochester, Indiana.

William Daymude, president of the board of trustees, presented the lot for dedication and the pastor, Dr. J. D. Darling, accepted for the church and gave a short address.

The dedicatory prayer was by Rev. Mr. Kenyon. Following this Dr. Darling turned the first spade of earth. He was followed by Albert Grant, president of the official board, members of the board and others.

After a short testimony meeting, the singing of the consecration hymn and benediction, the steam shovel began the work of excavation for the new building.

STATE TO AID STUDENTS IN CHOOSING VOCATIONS

Instruction in Guidance Toward Life Work.

THIS WILL BE REQUIRED IN THE HIGH SCOOLS

Five Aims Adopted—Proposed To Emphasize Importance of Mapping Out Career.

High school students of Ohio in the future will be equipped with a definite code of high ideals upon their graduation if aims of the state department of education are realized. Under the plan to require instruction in vocational guidance during the freshman year of high school, it is proposed to emphasize the importance of service to and obligations toward society in choosing a vocation.

The book on high school standards now being prepared says on this subject: "The high school is untrue to its obligations if its treatment of the vocation accentuates what a worker is to get from his calling in material advancement or fame, and minimizes what society is entitled to expect of him and what he makes of himself by meeting this obligation. Impractical as this point of view may seem to some, it is well to remember that if it is not brought out in the early years, when the temptations to ignore it are less insistent than they will be later, the likelihood of its acceptance in the years that follow will be much less."

Adopts Five Aims.

In presenting the aims of a course in vocational guidance, the department has adopted five presented by the Radnor, Pennsylvania, high school. Thehe are:

1—To awaken the pupil's interest in the problem of what he is going to do in life to earn a livelihood, or in fact, to deserve to live and accept the benefits of society, and to lead the pupils to give thoughtful consideration to this problem.

2—To give to the pupils an idea of the world's work, both from its cultural and practical benefits.

3—To show pupils the value of thoroughly investigating a vocation before even tentatively deciding upon it, and to train them in making such investigations.

4—To create a respect for all work of value to society, regardless of personal appearance or financial remuneration of the worker.

5—To lead pupils to remain in school and get as much training as possible, wherein it can be shown that the school offers the needed training.

Biographies of successful men in various vocations are to be studied by the pupils so they can see what things contributed toward their success in their respective callings. "Much stress should be laid upon the moral qualities essential to success, and ways by which these may be cultivated," says the book on standards.

TAKES OVER ERIE SHOPS AND ROUNDHOUSE HERE

Railway Service Company, of Local Men, Formed.

NEW PLAN GOES INTO EFFECT THIS MORNING

Shops and Roundhouse Leased to Local Company—Statement Issued.

With a view to bringing about more satisfactory conditions in a general way and bettering local conditions in a number of ways, the Erie Railroad company has inaugurated a plan here that went in effect at 7 o'clock this morning, the same as it has done at a number of other places in the past.

The plan is the turning over by the company by lease of its shops and roundhouse to a local company, the Railway Service company. The officials of this company held a meeting with the employes before the first shift started to work this morning and after explaining matters, work was started with harmony.

Statement Is Issued.

The object of the change is explained in a statement from W. A. Baldwin, manager of the Ohio region, which reads as follows:

"The Erie Railroad company has long been of the opinion that the most favorable results to both the railroad and the community it serves can best be obtained by the fullest co-operation and the amalgamation of interests so far as possible. It recognizes that its duty to the public and the communities along its line its that of furnishing transportation, and that all of the energy of its employes and officers should be directed so far as possible solely to this end.

"It has, therefore, in the past, under favorable conditions, contracted much of the work of maintenance of road beds, buildings, structures, etc., as well as the maintenance of its cars, engines and other equipment, to local companies whose stockholders, officers and employes are citizens of the community, and where favorable results bring profit and assist in the prosperity of the neighborhood.

Can Best Serve.

"Local conditions can best be appreciated and most intelligently met by the knowledge and interest of local supervision and support. The Erie railroad has before shown its appreciation for the interest in its welfare indicated by the citizens of Marion, and now that there is opportunity, desires that its activities shall be even more in common with the spirit of the city.

"The Erie railroad has accepted an opportunity to lease its shops and roundhouses to the Railway Service company, whose officers and stockholders are all substantial and respected citizens of Marion, and whose interests are those of the community. These men, headed by Mr. John D. Owens, as president, have had ample experience in the character of work to be performed and have made a success of their previous undertakings, and the railroad feels fortunate in having its work of repairs conducted by such a local company, and the employes of the Railway Service company are assured of fair treatment in accordance with the practice of the extensive manufacturing concerns of Marion."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindness and services rendered during the sickness and death of our father. We also thank Rev. Helwig for his kind words, and the members of the choir furnishing the music, for their services.

LAW SERVES TO KEEP TEACHERS AT POST

Quitting Without Consent of School Board Blocked.

School board members and superintendents are not experiencing this year the usual August worries resulting from teachers resigning at the last moment to accept higher-salaried positions elsewhere. A teacher who does such a thing will soon have a rude awakening for she will find on September 1 or thereafter that she is without any job.

Under the law enacted by the last session of the general assembly, effective August 6, any teacher who resigns between now and the end of the coming school year against objections of a school board, to accept a more lucrative position, will be punished by having her certificate suspended by the state department of education for the remainder of the school year. She may resign only after getting the consent of her employers.

State school officials say that this does not apply to a teacher who resigns to get married, but they request that prospective brides give school boards sufficient notice.

MEISTER FAMILY IN TENTH ANNUAL REUNION

Barney Meister Is Chosen President—Other Officers.

The tenth annual reunion of the Meister family was held Sunday at Garfield park. The following officers were elected: Barney Meister, president; Mrs. William Newhouse, vice president; L. E. Meister, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. J. L. Woods, Mrs. Mary Gibson, Mrs. William Newhouse, Mrs. Philip Meister and Mrs. John Fetter were appointed to serve on a committee of arrangements next year. It was decided to hold the reunion next year at Garfield park the second Sunday in August.

There were about fifty in attendance including members of the family from Cleveland, Galion and Bucyrus.

Miss Helen Atchinson, of south Grand avenue this morning left for Attica, where she will attend a house party at the home of Miss Ida Lufer.

THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"By reading a man antedates his life and makes himself contemporary with ages past."

After contemplating the achievement of the commercial cut people, the past glories of Standard Oil grow somewhat dim.

According to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, wet figures show that the United States has lost $8,359,900,000 by prohibition. Who would have believed that we floated our internal mechanisms to that extent?

How does the fellow, who claims that people no longer are willing to take a chance, explain the demand for cucumbers?

Since it has been pointed out that Senator France is a surgeon, it's a lot easier to understand why he refers to the operation on Russia by Lenine and Trotsky as a success. Probably another of those successful operations followed by crepe on the front door.

There seems to be perfect agreement regarding the awful conditions in Russia, save and excepting, of course, the dissenting view of Bill Haywood.

We hate to believe that Alice Robertson ever said that women want war, for if there's anything in such a view we may just as well cut out this world-at-peace talk. If the women really want war, we may just as well figure on more taxes.

"What has become of the youth," asks an exchange, "who used to sprinkle gasolene on his handkerchief when calling the first time to make her think he owned a car?" Our guess is that he never was born.

"As a firm believer in advertising," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "far be it from an intention of mine ever to censure the girls who wear one-piece bathing suits."

It always struck us as just a bit odd that, when the country was least in shape to stand the expense, the faddists and self-constituted reformers show the greatest enthusiasm over developing schemes to burn money.

The authorities down at Hamilton should watch for the thief who stole an apple orchard of 150 trees and catch him when he comes back to get the ground.

So the federal government is going to slash its expense account $520,000,000. If state and municipal governments would make corresponding cuts life would sound a lot more like a grand, sweet song.

It is said that King George's income is not sufficient to pay his expenses, but a little thing like that will hardly make him a man apart from the rest of the world.

If the Russian Bolshevists had had even the slightest indication of what they were going to do to their stomachs when they wiped out government in Russia, they probably never would have done it.

Scarcely a day passes that the Bucyrus Telegraph doesn't comment with regret on the poor condition of the Marion county end of the Marion-Bucyrus road. While we sorrow with him, it ameliorates our regret somewhat to know the store he must set on the pleasure he gets out of the visits he makes us.

A paragrapher tells us that "the hot weather that damaged the grain crops is said to have been so beneficial to the turkey crop that there will be an abundant supply of the Thanksgiving birds." Sounds too good to be true.

If there is anything like so much insanity, blindness and death in bootleg whisky as reports indicate, it will be only a matter of a limited time till liquor law enforcement will be taken care of by the course of events.

Talking about the dates of the coming "Bigger and Better Than Ever Before," there is no occasion to fear that there will be the slightest shortage of fine agricultural exhibits, despite all his talk about indifferent crops.

TOOK ONE LIBERTY TOO MANY

THERE IS SOMETHING DOING.

The foundations of American prosperity are as sound as ever they were. Right now the principal food crops, harvested or growing, approximate 5,742,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn, oats, rye, rice, potatoes, apples, peaches, buckwheat, barley, etc. There is the substance of our living and it is far from a famine outlook that is presented. More, it is the basis of the gigantic industry and commerce that pulsate and flow throughout our land from one end of the year to the other.

Whatever the relative scarcity may be, however slack general business may appear there is no stopping business. These enormous crops of themselves make a prodigious demand for every article of commerce which we know. Their growers must be supplied with a multiplicity of things. Though the farmers be not lavish in their expenditures, they can not close up their purses entirely. They do not pretend to do so. And the greater proportion of these crops will be consumed far from where they are produced. They must be hauled, most of them by railroad or steamboat. Their distribution from primary points and the transformation of the grains at least into consumable form will provide work for millions.

All this should, and we may have confidence that it will, give impulse to every factor of business, reluctant as some people may be to move until the irresistible tide sweeps them along. "There is nothing doing" is the prevalent expression. Is that so? Not by any reasonable test that may be applied. The United States Steel corporation reports a falling-off of unfilled orders for July amounting to 287,544 tons. If this figure represents the product delivered last month there was something doing in the mills. Quite likely there would have been a better showing were human beings less prone to act on suggestions.

The person who says "there is nothing doing" not only is not likely to strive to start anything, but he will deter others. Mark Twain once said: "I dislike work even when another person does it" which may, because it is the habit of men, cause a lot of foolish ones to shirk work until they are driven to laboring. There is a great deal being done. There would be a great deal more if all the people would take the farmers for their models and keep going. The farmers assure us food, but we can not live satisfactorily by farmers' labor alone.

"VERBOTEN" HAS LOST ITS POWER.

A dispatch from Berlin says that the Germans are taking delight in doing many things that are "verboten" and are getting away with it. The laws, or the rules, have not been repealed, but the people disregard them. So long as the old government remained, penalties for violation of a "verboten" sign were swift and sure and the average person would not think of defying it because the regard for the warning had been instilled through long practice. Now that there is a less rigorous government, a people's government in name at least, like children, the people feel daring. Released from parental control they want to cut capers, so they disregard "verboten" signs. They go in bathing where once they would not have dreamed of such an act and laugh at the policemen who are helpless to deal with such a crowd.

The situation is not astonishing. In fact it is logical. The fear of the rigorous Hohenzollern rule having been removed, it might be expected that a bit of license would succeed repression. No longer held down by an arrogant ruler, it is natural that the people should have their fun and do things that make the junkers sick for the old time when authorities were powerful enough to make plain, every-day citizens keep to their places. It is not stated that they are doing anything very bad, only that "verboten" no longer carries the authority it once wielded. The situation is an indication that there is rumor way in Germany that the paternalistic feature of the government is disappearing because the people distrusted it. Germany was the most "verboten" place on earth under the Hohenzollerns. It is well it is changing.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By Dr. James Ball Naylor.]

THINGS YOU DON'T KNOW—PROBABLY.

'Tis well to know quite a lot of things—
And to know quite well the things you know;
But it's better to know a few certain things—
Than too darn many things that aren't so.

Do you know a good deal about your country?

You do, eh?

Well, is your knowledge positive and reliable?

'Tis, hey?

I'll put you to a little test.

What is the northernmost state in the union?

Maine, you say?

You've got another guess coming.

Look at the map.

Ah! You've found that Minnesota is our northernmost state.

And, of course, you know that Texas is our southernmost commonwealth—don't you?

To be sure you do!

You'd bet on it, wouldn't you?

Well, you've lost: Cape Sable, the southernmost point of the mainland of Florida, is just forty-nine miles farther south than is any point in Texas.

And what town is farthest east—and what town is farthest west?

You don't know?

Neither did I—till I consulted the map.

Honest confession is good for the soul.

Our easternmost town is West Quoddy Head, near Eastport, Maine; and our westernmost is Cape Alva, Washington.

Well, here's another stumper:

If one desired to take the shortest possible hike across the continent, from east to west, where would one start and where would one stop?

Set out at Charleston, South Carolina, and sit down at San Diego, California.

Two thousand, eight hundred and seven miles.

Some hike!

And how far would a man walk in traveling from the southernmost part in Texas to the Canadian border, due north?

Fifteen hundred and ninety-eight miles.

But here's another question which will cause you to scratch your head:

Which is the longer—our Canadian boundary line, or our Atlantic coast line?

Our Canadian boundary line, you think?

Wrong!

Our Atlantic coast line is the longer by over 1,600 miles.

Then which the longer—our Mexican border line, or our Pacific coast line?

Our Pacific coast line—by about 1,600 miles.

What's the lowest state, in elevation above sea level?

Louisiana, you say?

You've missed; Delaware.

And the state with the greatest average elevation?

Colorado.

Class is dismissed.

EDGAR THOMAS PUTS HANE OUT OF RUNNING

Fifth Round of the Clark Cup Singles.

THOMAS PLAYS CRAFTY HAND WITH RACKET

Gilman Allen Defeats Robert Von Kaenel and Enters the Semi-Finals.

In one of the best matches ever played on the local courts Edgar Thomas defeated John J. Hane yesterday in the fifth round of the Clark cup singles tournament being staged at the Marion Tennis club courts. After being defeated in the first set with a score of 6-0, and being within one point of losing the match in the second, Thomas staged a wonderful rally, taking the second set 13-11, and took the last in an easy manner with a score of 6-4.

In the first stages of the match Hane outplayed his opponent in all phases of the game, not allowing Thomas to come up to the net, but by terrific and well-placed drives crossed the bigger man and kept him playing far back in the court.

Kept from Net.

Thomas was also unable to place Hane's service and being kept from the net, where he plays his most effective game, he easily went down in the face of superior playing the first set with a score of 6-0. In the second set Hane appeared to be playing his game somewhat easier and was apparently attempting to win on his service. Thomas coming up on his game, took advantage of the opportunity and was able to get in some effective work at the net.

The score waged back and forth during the entire set, each man winning on his serve. This part of the match was a gruelling affair and did much to tire both players.

Both played excellent tennis in this set, Hane having Thomas within one point of defeat.

After Hard Battle.

Thomas, however, fought every point and by several nice placements at the net managed to take the second set after a hard battle with a score of 13-11. In the last set Hane seemed to be tired out, the second set having worn him down. Thomas, on the contrary, played up to form and managed to get some nice work in at the net, having the edge over his opponent during the entire set, and winning the set and match after his remarkable rally with a score of 6-4.

Another excellent match was staged Saturday when Gilman Allen defeated Robert Von Kaenel and entered the semi-final round after winning a hard-fought and prettily played battle with set scores of 2-6, 6-2, 10-8.

Allen in Fine Fettle.

Allen displayed excellent tennis ability in this match and outplayed Von Kaenel, who is among the best netters in the club.

The semi-final brackets are all filled and the matches will be played today. Those who will compete in this round are: G. Allen and Thomas, R. White and D. Miller.

In the doubles tournament Hane and Hane defeated H. Allen and Weeks in an easy fashion with set scores of 6-2, 6-4.

SPRINGFIELD WHITE SOX WIN FROM DAILY STARS

Marion Players Lose Sunday, Six to One.

HITTING HONORS EVENLY DIVIDED

Locals Have Men on Hassocks Every Inning, but Get Only One Home.

(BY F. L. KRAMER.)

In one of the most exciting games of baseball seen at the local park this season, the Springfield White Sox put the cleaner on the Marion Daily Stars by staging a ninth inning rally and registering five runs. Up to this frame the score stood one to one with the locals appearing as the favorites, although the breaks were going against them. The Daily Stars had fifteen runners die on the bases, which showed they were not hitting in the pinches.

It was a great day for the sport knockers, but the article of ball put up prevented them from getting in much of their work, and they had to wait until the final round before they had their desires filled. It was a fast and even contest and the pitchers battled hard and were accorded some excellent support. Fast fielding back of Layton saved him in most every inning, while the locals worked two fast double plays.

Hitting Honors Even.

Hitting honors were even, each side registering seven safeties, while the locals fielded with one error less than the visitors, but honors in this department were very even. Jackman outpitched his opponent in a way, striking out five, walking but one and hitting two, while Layton fanned but three and walked six. Two of Jackman's three gifts were turned into runs and helped to cause his downfall.

The locals had men on the hassocks every inning, but were able to drive only one around. This happened in the first session when Weller drew a pass. He stole second as Lattimore fanned and Uhl struck out. Conroy singled to left, but Weller was held at third. Jackman lined to left center for two bases, Weller scoring, while Conroy stopped at third. Higgins died on a fly to Wolbert.

Retired in Order

The locals were retired in order in the first three innings and two were out in the fourth when they rallied and tied the score. Snyder drew the only base on balls issued by Jackman. Miller singled to left and Snyder was held at second, from where he registered on Kaufman's single to right. Wolbert rolled to Lattimore for the third out.

Only ten men faced Jackman in the next four innings and the visitors started the ninth with honors even in the scoring. Jackman hit Cozier, the first batter up. Snyder singled to left. Miller's Texas leaguer to left was just out of O'Donnell's reach and went for two bases, Cozier scoring and Snyder being held at third. On the squeeze Kaufman laid down a nice bunt and was safe at first when Weller missed a one-handed grab for the ball. Wolbert hit to the fence in right for two bases scoring Miller and Kaufman. Wolbert went to third on Jackman's infield out and scored while Toews was being thrown out by Lawson.

Steam Shovel Loses.

The Marion Steam Shovel baseball team, leaders in the Industrial league, met defeat at the hands of the Commercial-Huber team, Saturday afternoon, by a score of four to two. The game was a battle between the pitchers, and although Hawkins outpitched Roseberry in a small measure, Roseberry was accorded the better support and pulled out a winner.

The timely hitting of Price was in a large measure due to the victory of the Commercial-Huber team. Price secured two of the four hits made off Hawkins, one being a double, while he registered twice himself. Only one error was made back of Roseberry, but this figured in the scoring of the Shovels. Roseberry was found for only five hits, but he kept them well scattered, his two passes assisting the Shovels in their scoring.

Tail-Enders in Forum.

The Pollak-Power tail-enders in the industrial league, played in great form, Saturday afternoon and defeated the Silk Mills by a score of two to one in one of the best and fastest games played in the league this season. The game was a battle from start to finish between the pitchers who were accorded sensational support.

Disbennett held the Silk Mills to five scattered hits and was effective throughout, striking out eight batters and not passing any. He kept the Silk Mills rolling on the infield and the men back of him played in sensational style. With the exception of the fourth inning when the Pollak-Papers bunched hits with passes for a pair of runs, Warrick pitched a fine brand of ball.

VEIOCK ON SPORTS

Forest Hills, Long Island, Aug. 15—Many of the world's brightest women tennis stars bedecked the field of sixty-four entrants that started play here today, on the courts of the West Side Tennis club, for the thirty-fourth national championship in singles and doubles.

Miss Suzanne Lenglen, of Paris international singles champion and holder of every European woman's title worth while will attempt to lift the American title, but will not commence play until tomorrow.

Owing to the tedious voyage from France and lack of practice for a month, coupled with her inability to limber up Sunday, because of rain, Suzanne Lenglen's match in the first round with Miss Eleanor Goss, of New York was set ahead until Tuesday at 5 p. m.

The French star, who has taken up quarters at Forest Hills inn with her mother, visited the West Side club yesterday. All of the inclosed courts where the feature matches are played were covered and Sunday's rain did them little or no damage. Today, a bright and friendly sun smiled down starting to dry up the dampness in the turf during the early morning hours. The afternoon incidentally, promised to be a scorcher.

Though today's card was robbed of a feature by the postponement of the Lenglen-Goss match, the schedule promised to develop some real competition.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, national champion, and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, No. 2 on the 1920 ranking list, were to fight it out in a first-round match at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy and Mrs. Marshall McLean, two former national champions, were scheduled to open the exhibition matches and several other matches of important bearing on the final outcome of the tournament were to be staged.

BASEBALL

Tagging the Bases.

Red Faber, of the White Sox, let the Indians down with five hits and toppled them from the lead, the Yanks regaining it without playing. Frankie Frisch was responsible for five of eight runs scored by the Giants against the Phils. His homer accounted for three of them.

Sam. Jones gave up but four to Washington, while the Red bunched blows in two innings Erickson.

Ty. Cobb made a homer with on base in the ninth at St. L but the five-run rally fell short victory over the Browns who hammered Oldham for seven in four innings.

Mr. Oeschger, the nemesis of Dodgers, pitched Boston to a v outhurling Leon Cadore, one of hottest rivals in National league

Two triples by Jake Daubert a the Reds in defeating the Cards.

The Pirates kept up their ter of the Cubs, when Whitted homer in the seventh. His run the only tally of the game.

Garfield Club Wins.

The Garfield baseball club, f erly the Yellow Jackets, defeated Delaware Buckeyes at that P Sunday afternoon, by a score of to eight. The Delaware t stained a rally in the eighth and scored four runs, failing short of tying the score. G who pitched for the locals, was ed for eleven safeties. FURNITURE DOWN 48 PER CENT. SAY FEDERAL AGENTS

Has Declined More Than Any Other Article Except Food, Government Report Shows

Furniture had dropped more than any other article except food and was only 1 per cent. higher than that June 14, according to the report of the Federal Reserve Agents of New York City, says the July issue of The Grand Rapids Furniture Record, the leading retail furniture magazine of the country.

The figures showing percentage of decline during 1921 for all commodities listed were as follows: Groceries, 49 per cent. Furniture 48 per cent. Women's shoes, 43 per cent. Men's shoes, 38 per cent. Cotton dress goods, 36 per cent. Women's suits, 34 per cent. Silk hosiery, 33 per cent. Men's suits. 30 per cent. China, 24 per cent. Pianos. 16 per cent. At the July markets held in Grand Rapids, Chicago and High Point, N. C., during July, furniture prices reached the lowest level in five years, dropping back to almost pre-war figures. It is doubtful, says the Record, whether furniture will remain at this level as lumber is advancing and other materials have reached rock bottom and are bound to rebound soon to some extent. Furniture will probably be stabilized, it is asserted, at 33 1-3 per cent. below 1920 prices, which means that it will advance later nearly 15 per cent.

WEBSTER —MAN'S MAN

By Peter B. Kyne

Author of "Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—John Stuart Webster, engineer, after clearing up a forgery charge in Death Valley, Calif., boards a train for the East. He befriends a young woman annoyed by a masher, thoroughly routing the "pest."

CHAPTER II

Webster's dreams of bliss had, with a few slight variations, come true as per schedule. In Salt Lake City he had enjoyed the beefsteak on his dumb-waiter for two businesslike leeches, who had quickly reduced the nocturne that had found his orb, enabling him, the next day, to saunter forth among his fellowmen. By the end of the week he was a being reincarnated and had packed a huge new wardrobe-trunk with his latest purchases and had moved on to Denver. Coincident with his arrival there, we again take up the thread of our story.

One hour after his trunk arrived the man from Death Valley might have been observed standing before a plate glass looking long and earnestly at the reflection of his middle-aged person, the while he marked the fit of his new raiment. John Stuart Webster was all dressed up for the first time in three long, labor-ridden years and was tremendously glad of it. He lighted a cigar and stepped forth into Seventeenth street, along which he strolled until he came to a certain building into the elevator of which he entered and was whisked to the twelfth floor, where he alighted and found himself before a wide portal bearing in gold letters the words: "Engineers' Club."

The Engineers' club was the closest approach to a home that John Stuart Webster had known for twenty years, and save for the slight job of whitewashing which Father Time had done on the edges of the close-cropped Websterian mustache, he returned prodigal might have stepped out of the club but yesterday. He would not have taken the short end of a modest bet that even a fresh log had been placed on the fire or that the domino-players over against the wall had won or lost a drink or two and then resumed play—although persnance there were a few more gray hairs in the thickly matched head of old Neddy Jerome, sitting in his favorite seat by the window and turning the cards in his eternal game of solitaire in blissful ignorance that John Stuart Webster stood within the portals of home and awaited the fatted calf.

Webster struck the upholstery of an adjacent chair a terrific blow with his sack—the effect of which was to cause everybody in the room to start and to conceal Mr Webster momentarily in a cloud of dust, the while in a bellowing baritone he sang:

"His father was a hard-rock miner;
He comes from my home town—"

"Jack Webster! The devil's own luck!" shouted Neddy Jerome. He swept the cards into a heap and waddled across the room to meet this latest assailant of the peace and dignity of the Engineers' club. "You old, worthless, ornery, no-good son of a lizard! I've never been so glad to see a man that didn't owe me money. I've been combing the whole civilized world for you, for a month, at least. Where the devil have you been?"

John Stuart Webster beamed happily upon his friend. "Well, Neddy, you old stocking-knitter," he replied quizzically, "since that is the case, I'm not surprised at your failure to find me. You've known me long enough to have remembered to confine your search to the uncivilized reaches."

"Well you're here, at any rate and I'm happy. Now you settle down."

"Hardly, Neddy. I'm young yet, you know—only forty. Still a real live man and not quite ready to degenerate into a card playing, eat drink-and-be-merry die-of-inanition, sink-to-oblivion has-been to h—— fireplace spirit!" And he prodded Jerome in the short ribs with a tentative thumb that caused the old man to wince. He permitted his friend to drag him downstairs to the deserted lounge, where Jerome halted in the middle of the room and asked of His query:

"Where have you been, I ask?"

"Out in Death valley, California, trying to try loose a fortune."

"Did you pry it?"

John Stuart Webster arched his eyebrows in mock reproach. "And you see my new suit, Neddy, my six-dollar, made-to-order shoes and silken hose that question? Freshly pressed and ironed and almost afraid to sit down and get wrinkles in my pants! Smell that?" He blew a cloud of cigar smoke into Jerome's startled face. The latter sniffed. "It is expensive," he replied.

"And you can bet it tastes expensive," Webster answered, extending his cigar-case to his friend. "Bite the end of his cigar and light it," he commanded bluntly. "None of your business, but I'll tell you I lose you, Neddy, I've a hundred thousand dollars."

"Beloved!" Jerome retorted. "I've been combing the mining camps of North and South America for a month!"

This sudden belated interest in his welfare was all that was necessary to cause John Stuart Webster to forget his own troubles and to become interested in those of his friend. "Why, Neddy, old boy, I thought you were the original Rockefeller. What's the matter? Can't you get your money out of the ground?"

"I have a fine job for you, John—"

"King's X," Webster interrupted, and showed both hands with the fingers crossed. "No plotting against my peace and comfort, Neddy. Haven't I told you I'm all dressed up for the first time in three years, that I have money in my pocket and more in bank? Man, I'm going to tread the primrose path for a year before I get back into the harness again."

Jerome waved a deprecatory hand, figuratively brushing aside such feeble and inconsequential argument. "Are you foot-loose?" he demanded.

"I'm not. I'm bound in golden chains—"

"Married, eh? Great Scott, I might have guessed it. So you're on your honeymoon, eh?"

"No such luck, you vichy-drinking iconoclast. If you had ever gotten far enough from this club during the past fifteen years to get a breath of real fresh air, you'd understand why I want to enjoy civilization for a week or two before I go back to a mine superintendent's cabin on some bleak hill. No, sir-ee. Old Jeremiah Q. Work and I have had a falling out. Dad burn your picture, Neddy, I want some class! I've been listening to a dago shift-boss playing the accordeon for three years—and he could only play three tunes. Now I want Sousa's band. I've been bathing in tepid, dirty water in a redwood sluice-box and now I desire a steam room and a needle shower and an osteopath. I've been bossing Greasers and Italians and was forced to learn their language to get results, and now I want to speak my mother tongue to my old friends. By thunder I'm going to have a new deal all around."

"Very well, Jack. Don't excite yourself. I'll give you exactly thirty days to sicken of it all—and then I shall come and claim my property."

"Neddy, I'll not work for you. I'm mad. I won't play."

"You're it. I just tagged you."

"I require a rest—but unfold your proposition, Neddy. I was born a poor, weak vessel consumed with a curiosity that was ever my undoing. I can only protest that this is no way to treat a friend."

"Nonsense! My own brother wants this job, and I have refused to give it to him. Business is business—and I've saved it for you."

Jerome leaned forward and laid his finger confidentially on Webster's knee; whereat the light-hearted wanderer carefully lifted the finger, brushed an imaginary speck of dirt from it, and set it down again. "Be serious, you ingrate," Jerome protested. "Listen! I've been working for two years on a consolidation up near Telluride, and I've just put it across. Jack, it's the biggest thing in the country. Colorado Consolidated Mines Company, Limited. English capital, Jack. Pay 'em 6 per cent. and they'll call you blessed. There's twenty-five thousand a year in it, with a house and a good cook and an automobile and a chauffeur, and you can come to town whenever you please, provided you don't neglect the company's interests—and I know you're not that kind of an engineer."

"Do I have to put some money into it, Neddy?"

"Not necessarily, although I should advise it. I can let you in on the ground floor for that hundred thousand of yours, guarantee you a handsome profit and in all probability a big cleanup."

"I feel myself slipping, Neddy. Nevertheless, the tail goes with the hide. I'm not in the habit of asking my friends to guarantee my investments, and if you say it's right, I'll spread what I have left of the hundred thousand when I report for duty."

"It's been a tremendous job getting this consolidation over, Jack. When—"

"In pity's name! Spare me. I've heard all I want to hear about your confounded consolidation. News! News! Give me news! I have to beg for a drink— Mose, you black sinner, how dare you appear before me without bringing a drink?"

Mose, the aged colored porter of the Engineers' club, flashed a row of ivories and respectfully returned the democratic greeting.

"Letter for you, suh. The secretary told me to give it to you, Mistah Webster."

"Thank you, Mose. Speak up, Neddy, and tell me something. Ever hear anything of Billy Geary?"

He was tearing the edge of the envelope the while he gazed at Jerome, who was rubbing his fat hands together after the fashion of elderly men who are well pleased with themselves.

"You have a chance to become one of the greatest and richest mining engineers in the world, Jack," he answered, "now that you've cut loose from that young crook Geary. I don't know what's become of him, and neither does anybody else. For that matter, nobody cares."

"I do—and you can take the trifling end of that bet for your last white chip. Don't let me hear you or anybody else say anything against Billy Geary. That boy goes for my money, every turn in the box. Don't make any mistakes about that, oldtimer."

Webster's face suddenly was serious; the bantering intonation in his voice was gone, and a new, slightly strident note had crept into it. But Jerome waved his hand soothingly.

"All right, old Johnny Pepper-box, have it your own way. Nevertheless, I'm a little mystified. The last I knew of you two, you had testified against him in the high-grader trials at Cripple Creek, and he had pulled out under a cloud, even after his acquittal."

"Give a dog a bad name, and it will stick to him," Webster retorted. "Of course I testified against him. As engineer for the Mine Owners' association, I had to. The high-grade ore was found in his assay office, and the circumstantial evidence was complete, and I admit Billy was acquitted merely because I and others could not swear positively that the ore came from any certain mine. It was the same old story, Neddy. You can be morally certain that high grade ore has been stolen from your mine, but unless you catch the ore thief in the act, how can you prove it? I suppose you read the newspaper reports and believed them, just as everybody else does."

"Well, forget it, Jack. It's all over long ago, and forgotten."

"It wasn't all over so long ago as you seem to think. I suppose you knew the Holman gang was afterward sent to the penitentiary for those same high-grade operations? Billy Geary's acquittal didn't end my interest in the case—not by a jugful! I fought the case against the friends of the Holman crew among the mine owners themselves; and it cost me my good job, my prestige as a mining engineer, and thirty thousand dollars of money that I'd slaved to get together. Of course you never knew this, Neddy, and for that matter, neither does Geary. I wish he did. We were good friends once. I certainly was mighty fond of that boy."

He drew the letter from the envelope and slowly opened it.

"And you never heard what became of Geary?"

"Not a word. I was too busy wondering what was to become of me. I couldn't get a job anywhere in Colorado, and I moved to Nevada. Made a million on Goldfield, dropped it in the panic of 1907, and had to start again—"

"What have you been doing lately?"

"Borax. Staked a group of claims down in Death valley. Bully ground, Neddy, and I was busted when I located them. Had to borrow money to pay the filing fees and incorporation, and did my own assessment work. Look!" Webster held up his hands still somewhat grimy and calloused. "The Borax trust knew I was busted, but they never could quite get over the fear that I'd dig up some backing and give them a run—so they bought me out."

"Somebody told me Geary had gone to Rhodesia," Jerome continued musingly, "or maybe it was Capetown. I know he was seen somewhere in South Africa."

"He left the Creek immediately after the conclusion of his trial. Poor boy! That dirty business destroyed the lad and made a tramp of him, I guess. I tell you, Neddy, no two men ever lived who came nearer to loving each other than Billy Geary and his old Jack-pardner. We bucked the marts of men and went to sleep together hungry many a time during our five-year partnership. Why, Bill was like my own boy. Jerome, I curse the day I took that boy out from underground and put him in the assay office to learn the business. How could I know that the Holman gang had cached the stuff in his shack?"

"Well, it's too bad," Jerome answered dully. He was quite willing that the subject of conversation should be changed. "I'm glad to get the right dope on the boy, anyhow. Have another drink?"

"Not until I read this letter. Now, who the dickens knew I was headed for Denver and the Engineers' club? I didn't tell a soul, and I only arrived this morning."

He turned to the last page to ascertain the identity of his correspondent, and his facial expression ran the gamut from surprise to a joy that was good to see.

John Stuart Webster read it deliberately, after which he sat in silent contemplation of the design of the carpet for fully a minute before reaching for the bell. A servant responded immediately.

"Bring me the time-tables of all roads leading to New Orleans," he ordered, "—also a cable blank."

Webster had reread the letter before the servant returned with the time-tables.

"August, you go out to the desk, like a good fellow, and ask the secretary to arrange for a compartment for me to New Orleans on the Gulf States limited, leaving at 10 o'clock tomorrow night." He handed the servant his card. "Now wait a minute until I write something." He seized the cable blank, helped himself, uninvited, to Neddy Jerome's fountain pen, and wrote:

"William H. Geary, Calle de Concordia No. 19, Buenaventura, Sobrante, C. A.

"Salute, you young jackass! Just received your letter. Cabling thousand for emergency roll first thing tomorrow. Will order machinery. Leaving for New Orleans tomorrow night, to arrive Buenaventura first steamer. Your letter caught me with a hundred thousand. We cut it two ways and take our chances. Keep a light in the window for your old

"JACK PARDNER."

"That's a windy cablegram," Neddy Jerome remarked as the servant bore it away. "Why all this gurrulity? A cablegram anywhere generally costs at least a dollar a word."

"That's my delight of a shiny night, in the season of the year," quoted John Stuart Webster; "and why the devil economize when the boy needs cheering up?"

"What boy?"

"Billy Geary."

"Where is he?"

"Central America."

Neddy Jerome was happy. He was in an expansive mood, for he had, with the assistance of a kindly fate, rounded up the one engineer in all the world whom he needed to take charge of the Colorado Consolidated. So he said:

"Well, Jack, just to celebrate the discovery of your old pal, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll O. K. your voucher for the expense of bringing young Geary back to the U. S. A., and when we get him here, it will be up to you to find a snug berth for him with Colorado Consolidated."

"Neddy," said John Stuart Webster, "by my halidom, I love thee. You're a thoughtful, kindly old stick-in-the-mud—"

"No if's nor but's. I'm your boss," Jerome interrupted. And waddled away to telephone the head waiter at his favorite restaurant to reserve a table for two.

Mr. Webster sighed. He disliked exceedingly to disappoint old Neddy, but— He shrank from seeming to think overwell of himself by declining a twenty-five-thousand dollars-a-year job with the biggest mining company in Colorado, but—

"Rotten luck," he soliloquized. "It runs that way for a while, and then it changes, and gets worse!"

When Jerome returned to his seat the serious look in Webster's hitherto laughing eyes challenged his immediate attention.

"Neddy," said John Stuart Webster gently, "do you remember my crossing my fingers and saying 'King's X' when you came at me with that proposition of yours? It just breaks my heart to have to decline it, but the fact of the matter is, I think you'd better give that job to your brother after all. At any rate, I'm not going to take it."

"Why?" the amazed Jerome demanded. "Johnny, you're crazy in the head. Of course you'll take it."

For answer Webster handed his friend the letter he had just received.

"Read that, old horse, and see if you can't work up a circulation," he suggested.

Jerome adjusted his spectacles and read:

"Calle de Concordia 19, Buenaventura, Sobrante, C. A.

"Dear John: I would address you as 'dear friend John,' did I but possess sufficient courage. In my heart of hearts you are still that, but after three years of silence, due to my stupidity and hardness of heart, it is, perhaps, better to make haste slowly.

"To begin, I should like to be forgiven, on the broad general grounds that I am most almighty sorry for what I went and done! Am I forgiven? I seem to see your friendly old face and hear you answer 'Aye,' and with this load off my chest at last I believe I feel better already.

"Jack, you poor, deluded old piece of white meat, do you think for a moment that I hold against you your testimony for the operators in Cripple Creek? I thought you believed the charges and that you testified in a firm belief that I was the guilty man, as all of the circumstantial evidence seemed to indicate. I thought this for three long, meagre years, old friend, and I'm sorry. After that, I suppose there isn't any need for me to say more, except that you are an old fool for not saying you were going to spend your money and your time and reputation trying to put my halo back on straight! I doubt if I was worth it, and you knew that; but let it pass, for we have other fish to fry.

"The nubbin of the matter is this: There is only one good gold mine left in this weary world—and I have it. It's the sweetest wildcat I ever struck, and we stand the finest show in the world of starving to death if we tackle it without sufficient capital to go through. It will take at least thirty thousand dollars, and we ought to have double that to play safe. I do not know whether you have, or can raise, sixty cents, but at any rate I am going to put the buck up to you and you can take a look.

"This is a pretty fair country, Jack—if you survive long enough to get used to it. At first you think it's Paradise; then you grow to hate it and know it for hell with the lid off; and finally all your early love for it returns and you become what I am now—a tropical tramp! There is only one social stratum lower than mine, and that's the tropical beachcomber. I am not that—yet; and will not be if my landlady will continue to listen to my blandishments. She is a sweet soul, with a divine disposition, and I am duly grateful.

"I would tell you all about the geography, topography, flora and fauna of Sobrante, but you can ascertain that in detail by consulting any standard encyclopedia. Governmentally the country is similar to its sister republics. It's a cold day indeed when two patriots, two viva's and a couple of old Long Tom Springfield rifles cannot upset the Sobrante apple cart. We haven't had a revolution for nearly six months, but we have hopes.

"I am addressing you at the Engineers' club, in the hope that my letter may reach you there, or perhaps the secretary will know your address and forward it to you. If you are foot-loose and still entertain a lingering regard for your old pal, get busy on this mining concession I. D. Q. Time is the essence of the contract, because I am holding on to the thin edge of nothing, and if we have a change of government I may lose even that. I need you, John Stuart Webster, worse than I need salvation. I enclose you a list of equipment required.

"If you receive this letter and can do anything for me, please cable. If you cannot, please cable anyway. Do let me hear from you, Jack, if only to tell me the old entente cordiale still exists. I know now that I was considerable of a heedless pup a few years ago and overlooked my hand quite regularly, but now that I have a good thing I do not know of anybody with whom I care to share it except your own genial self. Please let me hear from you.

"Affectionately,
"BILLY."

Jerome finished reading this remarkable communication, then with infinite amusement he regarded John Stuart Webster over the tops of his glasses as one who examines a new and interesting species of bug.

"So Billy loves that dear Sobrante, eh?" he said with abysmal sarcasm. "Jack Webster, listen to a sane man." And he guided accordingly. I was in this same little Buenaventura once. I was there for three days, and I wouldn't have been there three minutes if I could have caught a steamer out sooner. Of all the miserable, squalid, worthless, ornery, stinking holes on the face of God's green footstool, Sobrante is the worst—if one may judge it by its capital city. Are you going to chase off to this God forsaken fever hole at the behest of a kid scarcely out of his swaddling clothes? Jack Webster, surely you aren't going to throw yourself away—give up the sure thing I offer you—to join Billy Geary in Sobrante and finance a wild cat prospect without a certificate of title attached. Be reasonable. What did you wire that confounded boy?"

"That I was coming."

"Cable him you've changed your mind. We'll send him some money to come home, and you can give him a good job under you. I'll O. K. the voucher and charge it to your personal expense account."

"That's nice of you, old sport, and I thank you kindly. I'll talk to Billy when I arrive in Buenaventura, and if the prospect doesn't look good to me, I'll argue him out of it and we'll come home. Let me go. I might come back. But I must go. I want to see Billy."

"You just said a minute ago you'd turned the forty-year post," Jerome warned him. "And you're now going to lose a year or two more in which you might better be engaged laying up a foundation of independence for your old age. For Heaven's sake, man don't be a fool."

"Oh, but I will be a fool," John Stuart Webster answered; and possibly by this time, the reader has begun to understand the potency of his middle name—the Scotch are notoriously pig headed, and Mr Webster had just enough oatmeal in his blood to have come by that center fire name honestly. "And you, you poor old horse you could not possibly understand why, if you lived to be a million years old."

He got up from his chair to the full height of his six-feet one, and stretched 190 pounds of bone and muscle.

"And so I shall go to Sobrante and lose all of this all important money, shall I?" he jeered. "Then by all the gods of the Open Country, I hope I may. Dad burn you, Neddy, I'm not a Methuselah. I want some fun in life. I want to fight and be broke and go hungry and then make money for the love of making it and spending it, and I want to live a long time yet. I want to see the mirage across the sagebrush and hear it whisper: 'Hither, John Stuart Webster! Hither, you fool, and I'll hornswoggle you again, as in an elder day I hornswoggled you before.'"

Jerome shook his white thatch hopelessly.

"I thought you were a great mining engineer, John," he said sadly, "but you're not. You're a poet. You do not seem to care for money."

"Well," Webster retorted humorously, "it isn't exactly what you might term a ruling passion. I like to make it, but there's more fun spending it. I've made $100,000, and now I want to go blow it—and I'm going to. Do not try to argue with me. I'm a lunatic and I will have my way. If I didn't go tearing off to Sobrante and join forces with Bill Geary, there to play the game, red or black, I'd feel as if I had done something low and mean and small. The boy's appealed to me, and I have made my answer. If I come back alive but broke, you know in your heart you'll give me the best job you have."

"You win," poor Jerome admitted. "Hold the job open 30 days. At the end of that period I'll give you a definite answer, Neddy."

"I sniff excitement and adventure and profit in Sobrante and I've just got to look-see. I'm like an old burro staked out knee-deep in alfalfa just now. I won't take kindly to the pack——"

"And like an old burro, you won't be happy until you've sneaked through a hole in the fence to get out into a stubble-field and starve." Jerome swore half-heartedly and promulgated the trite proverb that life is just one blank thing after the other—an inchoate mass of liver and disappointment.

"Do you find it so?" Webster queried sympathetically.

Suspecting that he was being twitted, Jerome looked up sharply, prepared to wither Webster with that glance. But no, the man was absolutely serious; whereupon Jerome realized the futility of further argument and gave John Stuart Webster up for a total loss. Still, he could not help smiling as he reflected how Webster had planned a year of quiet enjoyment and Fate had granted him one brief evening. He marveled that Webster could be so light-hearted and contented under the circumstances.

Webster read his thoughts. "Goodbye, old man," he said, and extended his hand. "Don't worry about me. Allah is always kind to fools, my friend; sorrow is never their portion. In answering Billy's call I have a feeling that I am answering the call of a great adventure."

He did not know how truly he spoke of course, but if he had, that knowledge would not have changed his answer.

Ladies Keep Your Skin Clear, Sweet, Healthy With Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Talcum

In Full View of Passers-By

One of the important additions being made in the general improvement this bank is undergoing is a large plate glass window on the Center Street side.

This brings the entrances to our great vaults in full view of passers-by at all times of day and night.

We mention this feature because there is no more forbidding barrier to those with designs on strong-boxes than openness to view.

In the construction of our new vault and in every other circumstance, we have left nothing undone that would make for absolute safety.

We wish this bank to be a place of security as well as courteous service.

How About a Safe Deposit Box?

Think a minute! Can you afford to take the chance of not having one for your valuables and important papers? There are so many ways things can be lost or destroyed that it almost amounts to pure negligence not to have one's valuables in a place of real safety.

The boxes vary in size, as do the rental charges, none of which are so high as to be the least uninviting to any one.

Thor AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC IRONER

Sold on Easy Terms

Pay only a few dollars and have this machine for your very next ironing. A small amount each month—which you save—does pays for it.

Takes all the work out of ironing

AT last an ironing machine that is absolutely automatic. No levers to struggle with. No foot pedals to tax your strength. No belt to slip or break.

Automatic Operation

Positively a revelation to women. Even the frail-est woman can do a big ironing, sitting down, without tiring herself. You can iron a heavy damask tablecloth in five minutes. Two buttons at your right hand control every operation. The shoe opens and closes—speed changes to high or low—it starts and stops—all at the touch of a finger. The open end of the ironing roll makes it easy to iron cuffs, collar bands and ruffles. The only ironing machine with a two speed roll—also a wide opening shoe, giving ample space for easy cleaning and waxing.

Irons Shirts, Dresses, Ruffles

Some people still think an ironing machine is only for flat work. It irons "flat work" of course—gives table linens a beautiful finish. But it also irons dresses, men's shirts, children's clothing—all the things you thought had to be hand ironed. Even ruffled garments are done quickly and fully.

MARCHING COLUMNS RECALL WAR TIMES

Soldiers of Second and Third Infantry Coming.

TO ENCAMP SOUTH OF CITY TOMORROW NIGHT.

Marching from Chillicothe to Camp Perry for National Rifle Matches.

Soldiers of the Second and Third Infantry, United States army, are expected to arrive at their camp south of Marion Tuesday afternoon on their 100-mile hike from Camp Sherman to Camp Perry. A motor-truck detachment which carried supplies for the troops to the camp site one and one-half miles south of Wyandot, passed through Marion early Sunday morning on its return trip to Camp Sherman.

In the detachment were ten men, five infantrymen and five from the Motor Transport corps. They drove five large Liberty trucks and stopped in Marion for breakfast.

Approximately 750 men of the two regular army regiments started on their hike from Camp Sehrman Thursday morning at 7 o'clock. They pitched pup tents just outside of Columbus mid-afternoon Saturday and went into camp for the night. The army camped at a dairy farm. Sunday morning it took up its march and stopped at Dublin. The hike is being made in easy stages of from eight to twelve miles a day. Powell, Hyattsville, Delaware, Waldo, Marion, Tiffin, Fremont and Port Clinton are among the stopping places.

Near Here Tomorrow.

It is expected that the column will reach its camping place along the Marion-Delaware road, about three miles south of Marion, tomorrow afternoon, and go into camp for the night. If this schedule is maintained the troops will pass through Marion Wednesday morning.

Rural folks along the line of march are finding the affair interesting. Some of them receive word of the impending "invasion," while others are taken completely by surprise, gazing openmouthed with wonder at the unwonted spectacle of the dust-grayed column. Not since the mid-war period has there been anything like it and there are queries concerning the "enemy" and the reason for march.

Headed by Colonel Paul Giddings and his staff, the Third infantry leads the van, its column including the field kitchens, water tanks and machine-gun lorries. The Second follows, led by Colonel Leonard, with Captain C. D. Carle acting as adjutant and Captain F O Schmidt the operations officer in charge of selecting camp sites and marching routes.

Something of a Lark.

Captain Carle says that the men as well as the officers are enjoying the march, considering it something of a lark after being in barracks so long at Camp Sherman. The men were given their full field equipment including packs. Saturday, after marching the first two days in first order, in order to get the swing of it without too much tiring at the outset.

There are a few cases of sore feet due to new shoes which some of the men had to use, but the general condition of the men and animals is good and the officers expect to make the long march without mishap. A sanitary train is included in the outfit.

It is expected that the hike will be completed the third week in August, the soldiers arriving at Camp Perry in time for the national rifle matches the last week of August and the first of September. On the completion of their duty at Camp Sherman, the Second Infantry will go to Fort Sheridan, Illinois, and the Third to Fort Snelling, Minnesota.

PREACHES AT UNION SERVICE LAST EVENING

Says All Are Reapers and Each Held Responsible—Dowler's Band Concert.

Rev M L Buckley, pastor of Central Christian church, delivered the sermon Sunday evening at the union church services on the department school lawn. Dr. Jesse Newark, pastor of Epworth M E church, presided. The opening prayer was made by Rev. D. H. Moritz, pastor of Salem Evangelical church. Rev C. L. Allen, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church, read the scripture lesson and also spoke the benediction. Preceding the services Dowler's band gave a sacred concert.

Rev. Mr. Buckley spoke on the subject of "Heredity" and the theme of his address was sowing and reaping in life.

"Sowing in this life is the greatest blessing given to man. It is only the people who do not want to reap what they sow that think it a bad law," said Rev. Mr. Buckley. "This law is a blessing because if a man sows bad seed he can destroy it by repentance and good deeds much like the man who plows a garden after the planting of bad seeds. The great trouble is that other people try to sow for us."

Seed of Deception.

Rev Mr Buckley illustrated the sowing of the seed of deception with the story of the selling of Joseph by his brothers. From the time of Abraham through all the sons of Jacob there was the seed of deception, he declared, and David was to blame. Solomon would not have had his harem with his thousands of wives if David had not set a bad example.

The speaker referred to the World war, which, he said started in the days of Bismarck when plans were made not to colonize but to raise large armies and take possession by conquest. When they failed they discovered they had been sowing seeds of deception for themselves.

Shuns Picture Shows.

"We are sowing evil seeds today," Rev. Mr. Buckley said, "by permitting motion pictures to show criminal and sex pictures until now it has become so much an everyday occurrence we think nothing of it. This is leading our boys to commit crimes and unless we do something to stop it we will have on our hands a race of criminals to contend with.

"By obeying God's law of burden bearing for other people, we are sowing seeds of kindness, but by refusing to obey this law we are sowing seeds of selfishness."

Rev Mr Buckley closed his address by saying that while the world is one great field, all are reapers in it and each one of us is held responsible for the talent which he has."

Miss Helen Moore, of Rushsylvania; Misses Bertha Kenyon and Mabel Smith, Howard Fetter, Frank Kemmerley and LeMoyne Bell were entertained Sunday at the home of Marion Frye, of near Bellefontaine.

L. F Dennig and family left this morning on a motor trip to the lakes, where they will pass ten days fishing.
